

A Generalization of the Bombieri-Pila Determinant Method

Oscar Marmon

Abstract

The so called determinant method was developed by Bombieri and Pila in 1989 for counting integral points of bounded height on affine plane curves. In this paper we give a generalization of that method to varieties of higher dimension, yielding a proof of Heath-Browns Theorem 14 by real-analytic considerations alone.